Dear Dick:

What a pleasure it was to be with you once again, and to have the good fortune to share the afternoon with you and your able associates, exploring the manner in which foreign nations handle their defense manpower problems. All of us on the Commission learned a great deal. We were delighted to have the views of your people on these matters, knowing full well that we could not learn that information from any other source available to us.

As you know, our inquiry is an exceedingly broad one. But we are hoping for the chance to make a contribution.

I look forward to being with you when my daughter graduates from high school in June. You have my thanks and very best wishes.

Sincerely,

Curtis W. Tarr
